Please relay my message to stop the backpedaling by renewing restrictions on women's choices in healthcare. Just because some powerful Republicans are extremists when it comes to fundamentalist views and religious zealotry, doesn't mean it's time to try to stomp on women's rights, and adopt views from the Vatican patriarchy. Voting is done by women, too, and the time will come when the pending legislation will bite back in ways that will be felt. Meanwhile, rapists, incestuous male relatives, and child molesting priests and bishops thank you for giving them a little more time with a little more power.

I thank you for standing on the side of your sisters, daughters, aunts, and friends who recognize and expect that women should be given equal access to healthcare for their own bodies as men have.

Sincerely,

Cindy Coleman
